参加者へのメッセージ Message to Participants

As an advocate for digital transformation and an expert in e-government. Instead of coming up with a fictitious answer that would never be used anywhere, let the engineers always consider a straightforward and workable solution to our current pressing problems. Innovation is a byproduct of invention and, after implementation, commercialization. solutions that greatly advance the socioeconomic well-being of societies. The shift of digital services is currently most noticeable in emerging nations. However, nothing is known about how much ICTs have altered initiatives, which continue to thrive and fail.
