– Japanese Calligraphy KANJI SHODO –

"Kana Shodo" is calligraphy written in the "kana" script, which is a uniquely Japanese script. Kana characters developed during the Heian period (794–1185) as a cultural art form with beauty as well as a role in conveying the meaning of the Japanese language. And kana calligraphy has now become a part of traditional Japanese culture. It is a great opportunity to learn about calligraphy academically and artistically by experiencing the beauty of the kana characters.
