

Greetings for the 70th TIEC Research and Presentation

Hello to all presenters and audience.

I am YOSHINO Toshio, serving as Vice President of Japan Student Services Organization and Superintendent of Tokyo International Exchange Center. The Tokyo International Exchange Center (hereafter TIEC), as an intellectual exchange center, presently accepts about 1000 international students, Japanese students, researchers and their families from 80 countries and regions all over the world. TIEC annually carries out various international exchange events to promote intellectual exchange among residents. The TIEC Research and Presentation has started since 2003 and been held twice in this year. This time, we mark the 70th anniversary of the TIEC Research and Presentation. This research exchange presentation will be held in the hope of that all participants can develop an atmosphere conducive to creating intellectual networking and interaction with other attendants beyond the framework of their institutional affiliations. All participants definitely can fulfill their expectations to promote research exchange by viewing and presenting at the event. Unfortunately, continuing from the late time, this event is held without spectators at venue. However, all presentation will be recorded and livestreamed via JASSO's website and YouTube. I hope that seven presenters can fully enjoy this great opportunity to present their current research achievements and findings. In this situation, the worldwide expansion of new coronavirus infection strictly restrict the movement of people, and sluggish economic activities gives a huge impact on their learning and research. Therefore, all presenters might feel anxious and impatient. In such a circumstance, from the bottom of my heart, I thank all presenters and audience for their participation. As all expect, I wish to be a great research exchange presentation.

In addition, we are accepting your questions and comments on the comment box of JASSO's YouTube and website. Please feel free to post your comment or question for encouraging their further research. We are looking forward to your postings.
