プロフィール Profile

自己紹介/Self-introduction

My name is Hamza, I am currently studying as a PhD student in Toyo University's department of global and regional studies, I have previously worked as a civil engineer back in my country and I am very interested in the environmental field as well. I am conducting research on solid waste management and its potential treatment systems in developing countries with a focus on my own country as case study.

研究分野について/About study field

Solid waste management is a serious problem facing most countries nowadays, especially developing countries. This research attempts to find a solution to treat the organic portion of solid waste and reuse it in agriculture as an organic fertilizer or compost. many experiences have been attempted in the past but most of them have not been succeeding, hence the necessity of this reseach work.
