<外国人研究者からの報告/Foreign Researcher Report>

①研究課題 / Theme of Research
My research topic is "A comparison study on child care system between Japan and Mongolia for Community Empowerment and Continuing Professional Education". The objective of the study is focus more about how the countries, Japan and Mongolia, empowering the children, the community members and professionals. This time I focus more about how the countries prevent the school aged children from violence, especially from cyberbullying. However cyberbullying is a relatively new topic in my country, it may become more prevalent in recent times and can be damage and disruptive to school-life, because of technological evaluation and increased availability of internet.
②研究概要 / Outline of Research
Before coming to Japan I have completed my data collection and overall research outline includes following aspects: A) developing research instruments, which include description of current situation of adolescents' cyberbullying, determining behaviors of the attackers and victims, and other factors associated with bullying characters, B) conduct desk study, international trend and experience, and C) data collection.
③研究成果 / Results of Research
During my stay in Japan, I met many child care professionals, did field visits, including observation and group discussion. I have completed data collection process before starting my trip to Japan and with the team members we did the first step of the data analysis. According to my studies I have found that social network, including family members, colleagues and friends' network, which is very strong in Mongolia, show more symptoms of depression among the teenage children in Mongolia.
④今後の計画 / Further Research Plan
My study will be more extended through collaboration, scientific writing and conducting conferences. Our future research plan also continue to developing Mongolian version of Child Development Scale, Social Scale, Checklist for the Children with Disabilities, Index of Child care Environment, Index of Center based Child care Environment, which is developed by my professor Tokie Anne and her team.

①研究課題 / Theme of Research

Studies in other parts of the developing world are gradually being carried out on child care studies, yet in Mongolia there has been no available research done so far on such child study and empowerment. The current study between Japan and Mongolia would examine how child care systems and continuing professional education vary according to different cultural perspectives.

②研究概要 / Outline of Research

I suggested him to do literature review, conduct field visits, organize interviews with care workers and professionals to get familiar with child care and community development system of the developed and developing countries. The next step was doing comparative analysis, finding the ways to adjust the systems for Mongolian situation and culture based on his analysis.

③研究成果 / Results of Research

Most studies have been carried out within the context of western view of cultural values, so it's necessary to carry out a study that takes a critical look at child care and protection systems in Asian countries. So his study between Japan and Mongolia could examine how child care systems and continuing professional education vary according to different cultural perspectives. I believe that his academic knowledge and career in Japan will impact his future study and help him to create empowered community in Mongolia as well as the other countries.

④今後の計画 / Further Research Plan

There are not many studies available regarding to community empowerment and evidence based life span development in some countries such as Mongolia. So our lab research team is happy work on and support his current study and be a witness to how humans grow and change throughout their entire lives among the two nations. Our future research plan is conducting comparative and collaborative studies, which focus on human growth and changes across lifespans, including cognitive, perceptual, social, intellectual, emotional growth and personality.
