I would like to pay my deepest regards and gratitude to JASSO for supporting me in completing my higher education from one of the prestigious universities in Japan i.e. International University of Japan. I am a final year student pursuing MBA and actively looking for a job opportunity in Japan. As a foreigner, the biggest challenge I face while job hunting is regarding my Japanese language skills. I started to learn Japanese language as soon as I joined the university. I think looking for a job when you are in school is comparatively easy and you have a lot of opportunities to grab one during the campus placement. As soon as you graduate, the scenario becomes tough as you are now competing with many students. On campus, the companies are aware of the fact that you are learning and strive to excel but after graduation, when we search on our own, we are expected to know everything. I think this makes it a bit of difficult t look for a job. But as is said, without any pain there is no gain. So, everything has its good side after we try. Japan is full of opportunities. I hope to grab one soon. I would like to extend my thanks to JASSO again for their support in my studies.
7.Advise to others (international students)
Japan is the best place to stay and study. Adding the value of knowing the japanese language will be an icing on the cake.
